Free Counseling Announced Through Haitian Counseling Outreach Project

ATLANTA, Georgia (Jan. 15, 2010) – Trillium Springs Counseling is pleased to announce the establishment of the Haitian Community Outreach Project. The project has been created to offer free counseling to Haitian community families who have family members or friends they have either lost or are unable to reach in Haiti.

“We understand the trauma and stresses related to these most trying times for family members located here and unable to travel to Haiti to find their family members or friends. We felt we could share our experience in counseling individuals and leading groups with the Haitian Community here in the metro-Atlanta area. We hope that offering our services without charge will remove that barrier to those in need of counseling. We are also willing to speak to church or community groups,” said Vilda S. Brannen, M.A., NCC, LPC, founder and director of Trillium Springs Counseling.

Please contact one of our Haitian Counseling Outreach Project coordinators to set up an appointment: Sarah Postich, M.S., NCC, LAPC, 770-713-7724, sarahp@trilliumsprings.com or Julie Fortenberry, M.A., 678-427-1670, julie@trilliumsprings.com.
